Conceived as a space for collaboration and exchange of academic experiences, the 290th Anniversary International Colloquium was inaugurated at the Havana Convention Center. The space, inscribed in the program of the Congreso Universidad 2018, featured interventions focused on the history of the University of Havana (UH): its role in the creation of new knowledge, the role of science and innovation for sustainable development, as well as the internationalization of education.

Ileana Sorolla analyzed the international scenario in which the UH develops, the results of the collaboration and its impact on professional training.

The 290th International Colloquium of the University of Havana was attended by 35 countries and 11 international organizations.

It constituted, within the framework of the Congreso Universidad 2018, a space for rapprochement between the UH and its academic partners; a new step in the design of new agreements searching the expansion of the boundaries of the “Alma Viva” of Cuban higher education in its 290 years.
